

35 Business Ideas that Require Little or No Start Up Funds

A lot of people think that you need a bunch of money in order to start a business but the truth of it is in many business situations, you don't need much or any money. This is because what you're doing is selling either somebody else's product or a product that is to be developed or a service and you can use the money that you get from the sale of the product or the service or taking the order to actually acquire the product that you're selling. Here is a list of business opportunities that require very little or no startup funds.
